Suit Against the Tennessee Southern Railroad Company

Brought by Residents of Tennessee Street -Plaintiff May, However, Recover Damages.

Judge McDowell yesterday rendered hi ision on the motion to dissolve the inunction heretofore granted in the case of W. J. Cole against the Tennessee Souther Railroad Company, restraining the rail-road company from constructing a railway track along the center of Tennessee street, in front of the abutting loss of com-

Judge McDowell says: The Taxing-District of Memphis, under its charter, has the right to permit and regulate the laying of railroad tracks of iron, and the assage of railroad cars through the dis-

In pursuance of this delegated power it has granted, so far as it could do so, the right of way of Tennessee street to the defendant, and has given it permission to construct a railroad track of iron along the center of said street. Memphis, Tenn., from thence through the county of Shelby to the north line of Obion county, while the code, 1119, gives it the authority and right to connect with the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad (9 Baxter, see 241). It is chaimed by the defendant that these statutory provisions give it the power to lay down and operate a railroad over Tennessee street without compensation to abutting lot-owners, either for pensation to abutting lot-owners, either for e appropriation of the track or for damages to abutting lots. THE PLAINTIPP'S AUGUMENT On the other hand, the complainants in-

Third.—That compensation must pre cede the taking or appropriating the street for railroad purposes.

DECISIONS IN OTHER CASES It's clear to my mind that the first proposition is untenable. In the case of the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Con pany of Adams, the Court said in an able opinion, delivered by Judge Wright, that the words 'from a town or city used in a charter for work or improvements like this, it has been held must be taken exusively," and that in such cases the railroad company had a right to pass through the city. It further says that "the power —Licenses to marry were issued yesterday to E. Tate and Ellen Webb; William Sommer and Louise Glindcamp; R. H. Cleere and D. —Harry Williams, who robbed the residence of Mr. D. H. Poston, and was afterward captured at Little Rock, was sentenced in the power to locate on said street, and as the bill fails to show anything to the contrary, the presumption is thing to the contrary.

The defendant is not a trespesser, but entered upon the street both upon the oyally welcomed. The committees are ance with the settled adjudications of our own State. NOT ENTITIED TO AN INJUNCTION.

I hold that complainants are in no event entitled to a restraining writ to prevent the building of the railroad until they are paid for damages. It is not damages growing out of the taking of the property itself.

It is not damages. It is not damages growing out of the taking of the property itself.

It is not damages may be consequential. Neither is it about to commit a nuisance.

Meeting Maj. F. C. In outline, he said, it meant cheaper coal for Memphis, and the manufacture of iron at least $2 a ton cheaper than it can be turned out at Bir mingham. The railroad upon which Maj. The reason given is that the Tennessee river is navigable the entire distance from Florence to Paducah, at which point it EMPTIES INTO THE MISSISSIPPI

It is a very short distance by Maj. Gordon's road from the iron and coal fields to the Tennessee river.
